

Kappa Sig Karnival Raises Close to $400 for Children

Last week's Kappa Sigma Karnival and dance raised between $350 and $400 for the local Retarded Childrens Association.

Altogether, proceeds from the Karnival came to just over $600 and proceeds from the dance also totaled slightly over $600. The donation was made after expenses, primarily for the Arapesh rock group.

The awards for the best booth in the fraternity division went to the Kappa Alpha jail, with the Fiji dunking booth placing second. The Phi Mu beer mug booth took highest honors in the sorority division and the En Ami ashtray sale came in second.

FOR INDEPENDENT organizations the ROTC football throw was tops with the Sociology Club placing second.

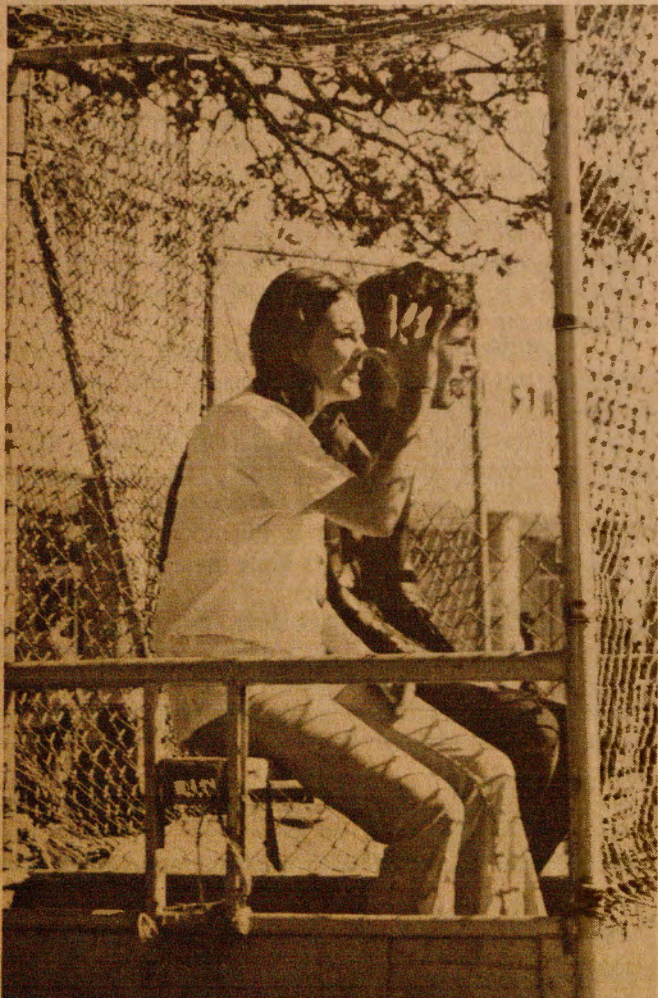

The booth awards were based on the amount of money the organization raised, booth originality and cooperation with the Kappa Sig sponsors.

The annual sorority skits this year were unusual. Instead of six individual skits as there had been previously, this year there was only one Panhellenic skit. The theme of the skit as determined by Kappa Sigma was women's liberation. With this in mind, all of the coeds did one large skit and unrolled a banner proclaiming that they would do no skits.

BOB ALLISON, chairman of the Karnival, commented on the "inappropriate timing of this action." He questioned the sororities' refusal to participate on the basis that the Karnival was a charity event. No awards were given for the skits.

The organization raising the most money during the Karnival was Kappa Alpha, followed by the Kappa Sig burlesque show, Fiji, ROTC, Phi Mu and the Sociology Club.

THUMBS UP — A UTA coed gives the signal to fire when ready as contestants try their luck at the Fiji dunking booth at the Kappa Sig Karnival last week. The Karnival raised nearly $400 for retarded children.
